

A MODERN SUFFERING.

The Want of Sleep a Most Trying Condition.

Surprise That the Body Can Stand Such a Strain—Nature's Sweet Restorer and Restimulant Boon.

To restore the nervous energy spent during the day and invigorate the whole system a certain amount of sound, unbroken repose is necessary.

Sleep is absolutely essential for the preservation of mental and physical health, and the loss of it for a long time must sooner or later lead to serious results. Who has not at some period suffered the misery of a sleepless night; the tossing about, the long hours, the weary thinking and thinking, the vain endeavors to court the fickle goddess of sleep, and the tired feeling, the utter weariness of mind and body on the following day?

Sleeplessness is essentially a modern suffering, the outcome of this nineteenth century life of hurry, irregularity and competitive strife. Regularity of habits is an inducer of sound and healthy sleep, provided the nervous system is in good condition. If there is sleeplessness the blood and nervous system need to be strengthened and invigorated. Mrs. Emma Turner, of 356 15th St., New York city, was a victim of this disease, who had tried in every way to induce sleep without avail. At last she found the cure—natural sleep came to her and with it health and strength again.

MRS. E. TURNER.

"I have been sick for two years," writes Mrs. Turner, "with nervous prostration, gastritis and spinal trouble. I was confined to the house a greater part of the time. I was troubled with insomnia also."

After taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for three months I have entirely recovered my usual health and strength. I sleep well and eat well."

What a great change in Mrs. Turner's life came from the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great blood and nerve remedy. Her nights of restless tossing and wakefulness gave place to calm, peaceful, delicious sleep under the strengthening and invigorating influence of this admirable medicine. It will do the same for you. Use it, and again sound sleep will be yours, and with it health and strength. This grand remedy is the discovery, after years of research, of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York city, who may always be consulted, personally or by letter, free of charge.

VIEWS OF MARRIAGE.

It Consummates Life—No Single Life is the Perfect One.

We hear young men say, "I am too poor to get married," and girls, "The man I marry must be rich." These remarks appear harmless, and they may have a certain business shrewdness behind them. Still the larger truth is that the speakers most often do not take an honest view of marriage, no matter how honorable may be their purposes. Money cannot insure happiness, and long experimenting in the countries of Europe has shown that mating for wealth is the sure road to a lax and immoral domestic economy. It would seem that the sensible view to take of marriage is that it consummates life for the poor and the rich, the vulgar and the refined; that no single life is the perfect life. The future of mankind depends almost wholly upon happy marriages and healthy offspring. And this suggests that there should be no marrying of unsound people. Greater selfishness cannot be imagined than that which brings children into the world doomed to a life of inimitable misery, the hereditary burden of those who bear their parents' burden of disease. Shall we say that questions arise in this connection too delicate for discussion with young persons? Is it better to leave the discussion to be raised after it is too late?

The sensible view of marriage is the view that comprehends every consequence. To the young people looking forward to a long and happy wedded life it is of vital importance that no element of the subject shall be a mystery; that nothing connected with the matrimonial venture shall be left to the hazard of chance. Parents must understand that their children are to be parents; that there is no escape from the responsibility, and that education is incomplete and training inadequate which does not qualify for paternity and maternity. The young man and the young woman who are fitted for marriage are fitted for all that a healthy, courageous and happy life demands or imposes.—Chautauquan.

SALEM NEWS

Walter Goode, son of S. D. Goode, is sick. Dr. F. H. B. Dillard is attending him.

G. F. Mayer, of Stephen City, is in town visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Allemon.

A license was issued yesterday to Jno. O. Graham, of Botetourt county, and Miss Mary L. Roberts.

J. A. Baumgardner and family have moved into the Crawford property, on the boulevard.

The trial of John Williams, colored, for an attempt at rape, will come up before Squire Camper to-day.

Mrs. Ryan and sons, of Texas, who have been visiting relatives in the county, left yesterday for their home.

E. H. Sheafe, of Washington, D. C., was in Salem yesterday in the interest of the Eastern Building and Loan Association.

Jerry Shartzer has returned from a very successful business trip to Lynchburg. Mr. Shartzer will ship about 1,000 carnations per week to that city besides large orders for violets.

John Petty, his mother, two sisters and Miss Marie Evans left for Ocala, Fla., on the early vestibule train yesterday morning to spend the remaining winter and early spring months.

A. B. Pugh returned yesterday from Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Whether he went about two weeks ago to have his little boy treated at that famous institution. His many friends will be pained to learn that his child received no benefit from the treatment.

The noonday prayer meeting room was crowded again yesterday to hear Evangelist Dean. His Bible reading on "What the Word of God Does For Us" at 3 p. m. was listened to with the closest attention by a good-sized audience at the Methodist Church. The singing, led by Mr. Burnett, is an attractive feature of these meetings, which are largely attended. Rev. C. G. Nevitt, of Rockville, Md., and Rev. Taylor, an evangelist, also of Maryland, have attended all these meetings, as well as most of the ministers of the town. The simplicity and child-like faith that this man of God shows in his Scripture readings is truly beautiful.

Robbery. As B. W. Graham, a young white boy, was on his way home from town last Saturday he was assaulted about two miles west of Salem by John Wade, a colored youth, and robbed of some tobacco which Graham had taken to town to sell. The negro, it seems, was in the field and told young Graham that he wanted to buy some tobacco and asked him to bring it over in the field. The negro then knocked the boy down with a stick and took his tobacco away from him. He was tried before Justice Camper yesterday and sent on to the grand jury.

VINTON.

There is much sickness among Vinton children.

A. L. Padigo is sojourning with relatives in North Carolina.

Rev. W. W. Hamilton and wife and Miss Helen Kern returned from a visit to friends in Bedford City yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Polly Vinyard, an aged and highly respected lady, living three miles east of town, is extremely ill, and her death is hourly expected.

For good and sufficient reasons the festival to have been held by the Baptists Friday and Saturday evenings, has been postponed until the 24th and 25th of this month.

The parents and friends of Miss Lizzie Vinyard are delighted to learn that her three months' stay in El Paso, Texas, has had a wonderful effect on her health. She has gained nineteen pounds, and can walk, with little fatigue, a distance of three miles.

If you once use it you will never again be without it. Pond's Extract is Nature's own remedy for aches and pains.

Did You Ever Try Electric Bitters as a remedy for your troubles? If not, get a bottle now and get relief. This medicine has been found to be peculiarly adapted to the relief and cure of all Female Complaints, exerting a wonderful direct influence in giving strength and tone to the organs. If you have Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Headache, Fainting Spells, or are Nervous, Sleepless, Excitable, Melancholy or troubled with Dizzy Spells, Electric Bitters is the medicine you need. Health and strength are guaranteed by its use. Fifty cents and $1.00 at Massie's Pharmacy, 109 Jefferson street.

An Old Soldier's Recommendation. In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it, and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease, as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. BENDIGO, Halsey, Oregon. For sale by the Chas. Lytle Drug Company.

THEATER HATS IN PARIS

Paris Theaters Providing Checks and Boxes For Headwear.

Braiding is soon on many of the winter jackets. Jackets of red cloth elaborately braided with black, often in a palm pattern, are considered very much "the thing."

White silk dressing gowns trimmed with fur are among the latest caprices of fashion.

The question of the theater hat is still being agitated in Paris, and until it is settled there it will probably remain open everywhere else. The Comedie Francaise has inaugurated a hat checking system for women by which every hat delivered to the attendant in the cloakroom is provided with a private box of its own during the performance, and ladies who sit in the orchestra must wear either no hat or a mere apology for one. The checking, but more particularly the unchecking, of women's hats is rather a long and tedious process, as it involves more or less attention to the hair and the aid of a mirror, and an American audience, characteristically hurried and impatient, would hardly put up with such a system. By far the simplest way out of the difficulty is for women theatergoers to wear a small, flat bonnet that will be in nobody's way and will yet be enough of a head covering to be worn through the street. Theater bonnets are the simplest things in the world to make and the most becoming after they are made. A few flowers, a bit of lace and an ornamental pin are quite enough for the purpose if the hair is prettily arranged for the reception of the bonnet. A very pretty Paris model was composed almost entirely of small, leafless velvet roses of a bright red, arranged around a tiny spangled crown of no particular shape. Violets, which are again in style, might be similarly combined with guipure or green flowers with jet.

The walking costume shown in the illustration is of platinum gray bure. The godet skirt has two quilles in front, of striped gray and moss green velvet laid in plaits. These quilles are framed by black embroidery. The gray bodice has a short rippled basque, edged with black astrakhan. The bodice opens over a plastron of moss green velvet and has a wide, folded collar bordered with astrakhan. The gigot sleeves have flaring cuffs of moss green velvet, and a flaring collar of velvet finishes the neck of the bodice.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

IT WAS A GOOD JOKE.

But the Obtuse Barber Could Not Get a Line on Nicks.

As he took his seat in a Brooklyn barber's establishment the fat, jolly looking customer turned to the knight of the shears and said:

"Dot was a bretty goote joke on Hans, vat keeps the barber shop around the corner. Don't it?"

"Vat is it? I guess I don't already hear of it," replied the elongated German barber as he stropped a razor before beginning work on his customer.

"You don't have heard dot joke?" said the latter. "It was so funny I laugh myself all over every time I think of it. It was like this: A man come into Hans' place, and Hans shave him. He says to Hans, 'Thers was something dot matter mit dot razor,' and Hans he say, 'Nix!' Then the man laugh like the devil nearly out of his chair and say, 'Yes; dots it—nicks, ha, ha, ha!' Bretty good joke, vasn't it?"

"I don't see where dot joke comes out," replied the barber as he dabbed the lather in the customer's left eye.

"You don't see that joke—nicks!" asked the customer impatiently.

"Nix; I see no no joke mit nix, and I tink you vas crazy," replied the barber emphatically.

"Well, if you don't see some joke mit nicks, you vas bretty thick headed," answered the customer in an angry tone of voice.

"You vas foolish or drunk—maybe sun-stroked," sarcastically replied the barber.

"Maybe I vas a drunkard loafer!" yelled the customer, "but I find me a barber who vasn't so thick headed he sees no joke mit nicks." And with that parting shot he went out of the shop, slamming the door after him.

"Next!" called out the barber, and as the new victim took his seat in the chair he said, "Dot feller vat goes out vas a flam flimmer or a crazy lunatics."—New York Tribune.
